

Part A: Reading Comprehension

School Discipline

Freya MacDonald, a 15-year-old pupil from Scotland, made the news in the UK when she refused to accept her school's punishment.

Freya's family say that she was given detention many times for trivial things such as drinking fizzy drinks in class and coming into school through a fire door. After her secondary school gave her detention for the eleventh time, she went to a lawyer and took legal action against the school. The teenager said that it is not legal to keep a pupil in the school building if the student does not want to be there, because Scottish law says that it is illegal to detain children against their will.

According to Scottish law every child has the right to an education. Freya says that repeated detentions disrupted her education and made it difficult for her to learn. She refused to return to school until the school respected her civil rights. She wants the headmaster and her teachers to sign a letter to promise they will respect her rights.

Hundreds of schools in Scotland were told not to use detention as a punishment because of Freya's legal action.

Detention: one of the most common punishments in schools in the United Kingdom, according to which a punished student must remain in a school area for a certain period of time. Verb: to detain.

Brave is the latest Disney movie and is about a naughty princess called Merida, who loves to be outdoors riding her horse and firing her bow and arrow. One day Merida's mum and dad (the king and queen) invite young men from around the kingdom to win Merida's hand but the princess doesn't want to get married and causes lots of problems.

As an animation film, it's not a great story because it takes a while to get interesting and it's quite easy to guess what's going to happen. Merida's three little brothers who are always up to something, trying to steal cakes and making a mess make you laugh a lot. The landscapes of Scotland are brilliant too. Merida is an enjoyable character who often shows how good she is with a bow and arrow. If she were in the Olympics she'd definitely get a Gold!. Brave sends successfully a message about improving communication between mothers and daughters.

Overall, I think it's a good film to see if you want to please your eyes but not your brain!
